

7. Shop the kids' catalogs. Pottery Barn's offspring, PB Teen, stocks some surprisingly sophisticated merch at junior prices—including this glass lamp that we filled with dictionary pages. Other fun possibilities: beach glass, branches, or vintage matchbooks. ($99 with shade; pbteen.com)

8. Hit eBay for inexpensive fabric. When we found this $95 faux bois chair at an antiques mall, it sported hideous nubby teal material. But a search for ticking stripes yielded this $2-per-yard fabric, so we could happily afford professional upholstery.

9. Or avoid reupholstering altogether. This slipcovered seat got a facelift—fast—via a folded, lightweight cotton rug. In the background, a floral curtain keeps the pattern going. (Rug, $58; 3'W x 5'L; williams-sonoma.com. Curtain, $98 for 96"H panel; anthropologie.com)

10. How to conquer coffee table clutter: The key to arranging a pleasing tableau atop a large table? Dividing the surface area into zones. Just check out how this $5 flea-market tray magically allows a group of small items to read as a single object. (Feather bowls, from $32; jaysonhomeandgarden.com)

11. The cheapest accessories are those you already own. Grab a bowl from the kitchen to display photos and postcards. Stack books to form risers that elevate eye-catching objects. And call upon a vintage planter to double as a handy, and handsome, remote control caddy. (Bowl, $18; westelm.com. Flower model, $99; Peddler's Home Design, 800-391-4927)
